

Fact 1: It Has Been a Park for 40 Years

The screenshot shows the DC Department of Parks and Recreation website. At the top left is the DC.gov logo with three stars and the name Mayor Muriel Bowser. A search bar at the top right contains the text "What are you looking for today?". Below the logo is the text "Department of Parks and Recreation". A navigation menu includes "DPR Home", "Services", "Events & Programs", "Permits", "Parks & Facilities", "Get Involved", and "About DPR". The "Parks & Facilities" section is active, showing a "Listen" button and social media share options. A sidebar on the left lists "Find a Facility", "Find a Park" (with sub-links for Dog Parks, Local Parks, and National Parks), "Find a Pool", "Construction Updates", "Submit Maintenance Requests", and "Memberships and Passes". The main content area is titled "Local Parks" and contains text explaining that DPR manages hundreds of local parks and provides an interactive map. Below this text is a map of Cobb Park with a sidebar showing details: Site Name (Cobb Park), Address (2nd St., Massachusetts Ave and H St., Washington DC), and Classification (Small Park). The map shows the park's location relative to the Center Leg Freeway, H St NW, and other landmarks like Wiseguy Pizza and Georgetown University Law Center.
