

Images by Ashley Tillery

F St NW

This picture was taken during an outdoor roller skating event sponsored by the city. The pictured individual is a college basketball player. Our conversation began by simply acknowledging her masculine presentation. In the African-American community she is referred to as stud. This image is part of an ongoing exploration of gender, perception, and race.

14th & U St NW

These two gentlemen have been friends for half a century. They laugh easily and reminisce freely. There is no resentment in their recollections. They neither begrudge the present nor fear the future.

Gallery Place Metro

Young man selling phone plans.

Gallery Place

Father and daughter heading to birthday party for a friend.

Gallery Place

Young woman waits for the bus at the end of her work day.

Gallery Place

Young man laughs at the rain. Just out of frame, there is a paper cup he is using to collect rain. His grandmother is watching for their bus.

9th St NW

He regained his ability to walk approximately a year after this photo was taken. The photographer knows this because he wrote to her on FB messenger to share the news.

Gallery Place Metro

Young men take a break from selling phone plans.

Gallery Place

Gallery Place